Wills
Why is it so important to have a will?

Wills

A Will is a legal document which details how you wish your possessions and property to be distributed after your death.

Having a valid Will is very important and making a Will enables you to:

- Make provisions for your wife, husband or partner
- Appoint Guardians for your children
- Provide for any specific wishes you may have regarding leaving certain items of property possessions or money to someone in particular
- State your funeral arrangement wishes
- Appoint your executors

Not having a Will, or having a badly written Will means the government will decide who benefits from your estate and how it will be distributed. This could mean that your family will get less than you intended.

Having a valid Will is just as important if you are in a Civil Partnership or if you live together as the law treats co-habiting couples differently

Our expertise

Making a Will is simple with the expertise of an experienced Wills & Probate Solicitor.

Paul Crowley & Co Private Client Solicitors are experts in their chosen field. The Private Client team includes members of the Society of Trust and Estate Practitioner's (STEP) and also members of Solicitors for the Elderly and the Law Society's Probate section.

At Paul Crowley & Co, we can discuss your individual circumstances and once we understand your needs we can draft a Will for you to consider. Once the contents of the Will are agreed we will then prepare the final version of the Will for you to sign.

Although much of the work we do can be carried out by phone or email there are times when we may need to meet. We are happy to visit clients at home or to attend nursing homes and hospitals to take instructions for Wills and to provide general advice in what can sometimes be difficult circumstances. Please ask for details.

Have you updated your existing Will recently?

Even if you already have a Will, certain circumstances such as marriage or divorce can automatically change it, therefore we recommend you take advice from our Private Client team as soon as possible.

Our promise to you:

- Your case will be handled by a named suitably qualified and experienced fee earner, with his or her assistants in support.

- We will return your calls and emails within the same working day.
- We will respond to your letters within 24-48 hours.
- We will use straightforward language and use legal 'jargon' only when necessary.
- We will be friendly and approachable at all times.
- We will deal with you in a respectful and professional manner.
- We will ask you for your feedback on the service we have provided.
